Narrative Description

(Describe the historic and current physical appearance of the property. Explain contributing and noncontributing resources if necessary. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, setting, size, and significant features.)

Summary Paragraph

The three adjacent single-family residences of the Triad grouping were intended to be the pilot project for a large tract of houses in La Jolla, but only this Triad was ever built. The houses are designed in relation to one another, but each differs in floor plan, landscaping, and treatment of exterior sheathing. Common materials employed include wood framing, concrete slab foundations, infill panel walls, and identical cabinetry, kitchen appliances, and fixtures. House A, the largest of the Triad, features a redwood clad exterior and a concrete step entry path across a reflecting pond. The property exhibits a high level of integrity.

Narrative Description

The site for the project was a new real estate development, the Chateau Ville by the Amantea Company, in the hills above the ocean in La Jolla near the new and growing campus of the University of California, San Diego. Two of the houses (B and C) are located adjacent to each other on one side of the street, the subject third house (A) is located directly across the street. All were designed by the architectural firm of Edward Killingsworth, Jules Brady, and Waugh Smith.

The chief objective for the Triad was to take advantage of planning multiple units and produce a master plan and building design that created a close relationship between the houses while still providing privacy. The public and private relationships in the resulting Triad are achieved through building orientation, placement and use of outdoor spaces, landscaping and the layout of vehicular circulation.

The houses are also related to each other through the use of common materials, detailing and form. Materials shared by all three houses include wood post framing (with some steel framing), laminated wood beams, and concrete slab foundations. All three houses have wood siding; House A uses resawn tongue and groove redwood boarding and houses B and C use fir boarding. Interior ceilings are acoustical plaster and the standard ceiling height is set at a generous ten feet. Kitchens all have oiled black walnut plywood cabinets with white tile or white plastic laminate tops; kitchen floors are vinyl. Aluminum sliding doors are used throughout all three houses.

One design feature common to all three houses is the entry sequence, which brings visitors over a shallow reflecting pool on the approach to the front door. Another common design feature to all three houses is the use of enclosed garage spaces rather than carports. The designers felt this was a sensible addition since many homeowners in this area used their homes seasonally and desired secured areas for their automobiles and storage.

While sharing common features and strategies, the three houses are not identical as they do vary in size and plan. House A, the largest of the three houses and the one associated with this nomination form, is the house located by itself on the north side of the road; it is on the downslope side of the road and is located three feet below the street. The plan is a modified U with the master bedroom, bath, dressing room, and sunbathing garden in one leg of the U and the family room-kitchen, maid's room, bath and two children's rooms in the other. The main entry, living room and reflecting pool are located between the two legs. The garage is attached via a breezeway to the family room-kitchen wing and is accessed by a service porch. There has been an addition to the south portion of the House A (adjacent to the garage) at some point in the past that does not detract from the overall integrity of the dwelling.

The dramatic entry sequence to House A brings visitors over a reflecting pool that extends beyond the two wings of the house almost all the way to the road. Precast concrete pavers lead one to a ten-foot high door and the entry court, which is also finished with precast concrete pavers and includes extensions of the reflecting pool.

The main living spaces in the house are oriented toward the north ocean views and make the most of the opportunity for outdoor living. The master suite has floor to ceiling glass windows and sliding door connecting it to the family terrace at the north as well as access to a private sunbathing court at the south side of the suite. The living and family rooms are also adjacent to and open on to the north family terrace and the views. The children's wing has direct access off the east side of the house to the play yard.

The house is essentially original and unmodified. As a result, it exhibits a high level of integrity of design, workmanship, and materials. The residence is in its original location and its setting has been retained. Integrity of association is high because of its continued use as a single-family residence. Because of these factors, integrity of feeling remains strong.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance and applicable criteria.)

Case Study House (CSH) #23A meets the criteria established in the Registration Requirements outlined in the MPS cover document. The property appears to be relatively unmodified as viewed from the public right-of-way. As a result, the house continues to “maintain enough physical integrity to be readily identifiable as a contributor to the program.” As relates to eligibility, the property meets Criterion A for its association with experimental modern housing in the postwar years under the auspices of John Entenza’s Arts & Architecture magazine. The property is also significant under Criterion C because it embodies the distinctive characteristics of residential architecture associated with the Case Study House program. In addition, CSH #23A was designed by master architects Edward Killingsworth, Jules Brady, and Waugh Smith. Therefore, the property qualifies for listing under Criteria A and C at the local level of significance.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

Case Study House #23A is a vital component of the built residences comprising the Case Study House program. The importance of the Triad, their significance within the program, and the work of their architects are thoroughly discussed within the historic context argument presented in the Multiple Property submission cover document. That historic context is: “Experimental Modern residential architecture of the Case Study House program in California: 1945-1966.” The house is a key example of the property type: “Single-family residences of the Case Study program” and the “wood-frame dwellings” subtype. The property meets National Register Criterion A for its association with experimental modern housing in the postwar years under the auspices of John Entenza’s Arts & Architecture magazine.

The Triad grouping was a pilot project for which only this grouping was constructed. Each dwelling exhibits individual approaches to floor plan, landscaping and exterior cladding, yet were designed in relation to one another. Subject House A, the largest of the Triad, retains a high level of integrity. All of the Triad dwellings were designed by master architects Edward Killingsworth, Jules Brady, and Waugh Smith. As a result, the property meets National Register Criterion C because it embodies the distinctive characteristics of residential architecture associated with the Case Study House program and is the work of master architects.
