Principal Interviewer(s): Sarah Heffner

Description of project: This project aims to finalize and publish the archaeological report on the 1969 Yreka Chinatown excavations as a special edition of California State Parks Publications in Cultural Heritage. Hard copies of the report will be provided to the Siskiyou County Museum, Montague Museum, Chinese Historical Society of America, Southern Oregon University, and other interested organizations. An online copy of the report will be available on the State Parks website: (https://www.parks.ca.gov/?page_id=29395).

As part of this project, I plan to conduct oral histories with or correspond via email, with individuals who worked on the excavation to get a better sense of working conditions and excavation methods. In addition, I hope to speak with former residents or descendants of Yreka's Chinatown.

Description of potential risks and benefits: It is possible that you may experience some potential risks/discomforts when doing this interview. If you feel uncomfortable about answering a particular question, please let me know. The information gathered from this interview/email correspondence, and my own research on the Yreka Chinatown collection and archives, will help contribute to a better understanding of one of the first excavations of a Chinese community in California.

Finalizing the Yreka Chinatown archaeological report and presenting these findings to the Chinese American community can help these individuals connect to their past, and will bring awareness to the work that State Parks is doing to help preserve these early traces of California's Chinese immigrant history.

Privacy and Confidentiality: I would like to use the information gathered from this interview for the final archaeological report and for papers presented at future archaeological and historical conferences. This may also include photographs. If you do not feel comfortable with your name being linked to this information, I will make sure that you remain anonymous and will ensure that this information cannot be traced back to you.

I acknowledge that _____ Sarah Heffner has fully explained to me the purposes and procedures, and the risks of this research. I freely and voluntarily consent to my participation in the above-mentioned research project.

I waive _____ or do not waive _____ the right to anonymity (my name may or may not be used in the project).

Prehistoric Artifact Report (original, anonymous)
and Lithics Analysis (Andrea E. Maniery)

Ms. Maniery performed analysis but did not produce the original typed report

The Yreka Chinatown excavation recorded a small prehistoric lithic assemblage in addition to an extensive historic inventory. This report includes the analysis, sketches and photographs of the lithic tools and debitage.

The Assemblage includes:

- 2 identifiable projectile points
- 1 unidentifiable projectile point mid section
- 3 projectile point preforms
- 2 scrapers manufactured by edge modification
- 2 utilized secondary flake blanks
- 1 possible secondary core
- 1 millingstone
- 48 pieces of lithic debitage

The prehistoric lithic assemblage includes only 60 individual artifacts of which 87% received neither catalog numbers, or in the case of debitage, unit lot designation. Furthermore, because of the historic considerations of the excavation and use of $\frac{1}{4}$ inch screens, other prehistoric material may have been missed or disregarded. The small assemblage size and poor provenience records preclude drawing concrete conclusions regarding site area or function. However, two identifiable projectile points allow a general temporal placement for some of the lithic material. Because of the probability of relocation during the construction of Yreka Chinatown it would be unwise to assume that the entire assemblage belonged to the same time period based on its stratigraphic relationship.

Discussion of the Lithic Material

The projectile point inventory includes one Green Chert point, one obsidian point and one obsidian point mid section.

The Green Chert Point was subjected to a modified Thomas point key chart (Elston 1977 after Thomas 1970).

The physical attributes and measurements are characteristic of the Rose Spring Side-notched family which has a temporal placement of A.D. 500-1100 (Hester 1973).

The long obsidian point resembles the Desert Side-notch Redding Subtype described by Baumhoff and Byrne in Ucas #72, 1959. A tentative date of A.D. has been assigned for its introduction into the Northern Sacramento Valley.

The unassignable midsection exhibits unifacial flake scars indicating one of two possible explanations. 1). The tip fractured due to impact or 2). a broken point was modified for some undetermined purpose.

Three projectile point preforms of obsidian are included in the assemblage. One preform is at a completed preform stage, one is approximately 80% complete and the third appears to have fractured in the early stage of modification.

The scraper division of the assemblage consists of utilized flakes. None are recognizable as belonging to a specific type, that is having attributes suggesting manufacture from flake blank through preform to implement. Yct-1810, the first example, is a utilized secondary flake with some retouch. The second example exhibits minor edge modification on a secondary flake. The striking platform is identifiable while step flaking or crushing has obliterated the percussion bulb. The third scraper exhibits unifacial and edge modification on a secondary flake blank. It is a triangular shaped combination scraper/punch. The working edge and point are heavily dulled possibly through use or post depositional crushing. The final scraper example is a thin secondary flake blank. Very light pressure retouch is evident along half of the right lateral edge (when oriented with percussion scars radiating up on the reverse.)

Yct 1019 - A chunk of mottled reddish brown and black obsidian, this specimen exhibits extreme post depositional battering along exposed angular edges, indicating a possible secondary core.

Green course chert chunk is possibly a secondary flake blank.

The assemblage includes 48 pieces of lithic debitage divided into 4 categories according to weight.

1 bag	13	flakes	.17-.38 grams
1 bag	11	flakes	.39-.65 grams
1 bag	13	flakes	.66-1.60 grams
1 bag	11	flakes	1.61 + grams

Pestle milling stone: 152 x 66 x 60 mm. This artifact is an oblong nearly round stone exhibiting a flattened butt end. The opposite end appears to have been altered either by purposeful shaping or use in a mortar. The material is very pitted and does not show surface polish.

The final object is a white fibrous mineral with silky surface and 2 cleavages. It belongs to the Borate Chemical class. The mineral has a specific gravity of ca. 2.12, a hardness between 2-3, and has been identified as either "Meyerhofferite" or "Hydroboracite". Some possible applications of the mineral include reducing it to powder then using laundry whiteners, also by dissolving the mineral then soaking cord in the solution. The result is a self burning wick. The only evidence suggesting mineral was used is its presence on the site. Since the mineral is either an evaporative or colemanite deposit it is not likely it arrived on the site through natural deposition.
