National Geographic Society. Field Guide to the Birds of North America. Washington, D.C.: National Geographic Society, 1987. A common field guide in use today to identify birds in the field. Uses colored drawings, location maps and narrative to effect a quick and accurate identification.

National Wildlife Federation. Ranger Rick's NatureScope. New York: McGraw-Hill. Ranger Rick's NatureScope is a popular series of publications "dedicated to inspiring in children an understanding and appreciation of the natural world, while developing the skills they will need to make responsible decisions about the environment." This periodical has consistently solid information (written in language kids can understand), fun, relevant activities, and many worksheets (which the publishers have thoughtfully made copyright-free). Very useful for the Junior Ranger Program.

National Wildlife Federation. Ranger Rick. Vienna, VA: National Wildlife Federation. Published monthly since 1967. www.nwf.org/kids/. A nature magazine "just for kids."

Nemzer, Marilyn, Deborah S. Page, and Anna Carter. Energy for Keeps: Electricity from Renewable Energy. Tiburon, CA: Education for the Environment, 2003. This balanced review of energy resources covers the history, availability, impacts, technologies and management of the energy resources we use to generate electricity.

Nickelsburg, Janet. Nature Activities for Early Childhood. Menlo Park, California: Addison-Wesley Publishing, 1976.

Niehaus, Theodore F. and Charles L. Ripper. A Field Guide to Pacific States Wildflowers. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1976. A convenient guide to nearly 1,500 species of Western wildflowers.

Outdoor Education on Your School Grounds. State of California Resources Agency, Office of Conservation Education, Sacramento, 1968.

Palmer, Tim, ed. California's Threatened Environment: Restoring the Dream. Washington D.C.: Island Press, 1993. Collection of essays about environmental issues affecting California, including population, air pollution, automobiles, recycling, water, etc.

Pavlik, Bruce, Pamela C. Muick, Sharon Johnson, and Marjorie Poppin. Oaks of California. Los Olivos, CA: Cachuma Press, 1991. A coffee table book identifying and describing all oaks found in California. Included is their development, identification, life histories, and historical relations to humans.

Peattie, Donald Culross. A Natural History of Western Trees. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1953. Filled with interesting scientific facts, impressive statistics, noteworthy quotes, historical anecdotes, and romantic lore, this publication is a valuable resource for interpreters.

Pellant, Chris. Rocks and Minerals. New York: Dorling Kindersley, Inc., 1992. A good key to rock classification.

Pelz, Ruth. Black Heroes of the Wild West. Seattle, WA: Open Hand Publishing, 1990. Biographies of nine heroic men and women in the West between the 16th and 20th centuries: explorers, settlers, businesspeople, a journalist, a rodeo rider, and Stagecoach Mary.

"Peterson Field Guide Series." The first major field guide series, Peterson's has been updated somewhat over the years, particularly the Field Guide to Western Birds. All identification plates are drawn (no photographs) with written descriptions of each plant or animal.

Pielou, E. C. Fresh Water. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1998. This source provides useful insights into the remarkable ways of water, such as the behavior of currents in a stream, the movement of pollutants through an aquifer, or the differences between a reservoir and a natural lake.

Porter, Erika R. All Visitors Welcome: Accessibility in State Park Interpretive Programs and Facilities. Third ed. Sacramento: Department of Parks and Recreation, 2003. This handbook has three purposes: to inform park staff about access requirements, to explain common disabilities, and to provide guidelines for making interpretive services more accessible to everyone.

Powell, Jerry A., and Charles L. Hogue. California Insects. California Natural History Guides: 44. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1979. Although less than ideal as an identification tool, this is still a handy, state-specific insect reference.

Powers, Stephen. Tribes of California. Berkeley, CA: University of California Press, 1976.

Purdy, Carl. Pomo Indian Baskets and Their Makers. Ukiah, CA: Mendocino County Historical Society, 1975.

Quinn, Kaye. Planet Earth. Los Angeles, Enrich, 1986. Contains games, activities and puzzles about earth science.

Quontamatteo, Nancy. The Gold Rush Era. Conceptual Productions, 1981. Learn and have fun with crossword puzzles, reading sheets, vocabulary lessons, money tables, outlaw handouts, transportation worksheets, map skills, word finds, and more. Clear writing, simple drawings, comprehension tests.

Rawls, James J. Indians of California: the Changing Image. Norman: University of Oklahoma Press, 1986.

Rawls, James J. and Walton Bean. California: an Interpretive History. New York: McGraw-Hill Book Company, 1998. Good concise basic history with excellent references at each chapter's conclusion.

Raymo, Chet. The Crust of Our Earth: an Armchair Traveler's Guide to the New Geology. Englewood Cliffs, NJ: Phalarope Books, Prentice-Hall, Inc., 1983. Modern geology presented by a master storyteller.

Raymond, L. and Ann Rice. Marin Indians. Sausalito, CA: Pages of History, 1957.

Reader's Digest. Joy of Nature. 1977. A wonderful publication covering all subjects of natural history and how interconnected all elements are in natural systems.

Regnier, Kathleen, Michael Gross, and Ron Zimmerman. The Interpreter's Guidebook: Techniques for Programs and Presentations. Stevens Point, WI: UW-SP Foundation Press, 1992. An excellent, easy to read interpreter's guide. Filled with pictures and useful ideas for all kinds of interpretation.

Reisner, Marc. Cadillac Desert: the American West and its Disappearing Water. New York: Viking Penguin Inc., 1986. The author weaves history, biography, engineering, politics and economics into a fascinating story—a story of the quest to control and allocate the West's precious supply of water.

Rezendes, Paul. Tracking and the Art of Seeing: How to Read Animal Tracks & Sign. Charlotte, VT: Camden House Publishing, Inc., 1992. With high-quality photographs and detailed descriptions of animal signs, this publication is a valuable identification tool.

Rice, Richard B., William Bullough, and Richard Orsi. The Elusive Eden: a New History of California. New York: McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc., 1996.

Rickett, Harold W. Wildflowers of the United States. McGraw-Hill.

Rockwell, David. The Nature of North America: a Handbook to the Continent: Rocks, Plants, and Animals. New York: Berkley Books, 1998. This source is ideal for interpreters who want to consider California's natural history in a broader context.

Rolle, Andrew F. California: a History. (fourth edition). Harlan Davidson, 1987. Considered the standard history of California, this book begins with California's early inhabitants and covers Spanish rule, Mexican control, American exploration and settlement, the gold rush, immigration and statehood.

Roth, Charles E. The Wildlife Observer's Guidebook. Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey: Phalarope Books, Prentice-Hall, Inc., 1982. A practical manual for wildlife watching.

Russo, Ronald A. Plant Galls of the California Region. Pacific Grove, CA: The Boxwood Press, 1979. Galls are common to many plants. This book identifies many of these galls, their host plants, and the insects that cause them.

Russo, Ron, and Pam Olhausen. Pacific Intertidal Life: a Guide to Organisms of Rocky Reefs and Tide Pools of the Pacific Coast. Berkeley, CA: Nature Study Guild Publishers, 1981. Easy to use and compact in size, this guide to seashore life is a good choice for beginners.

Sargent, Charles S. Manual of the Trees of North America. New York: Dover Publications, 1961.

Scarry, Rick. Things that Go: From the Wheel to Modern Engines. New York: Derrydale Books, 1986. Almost every form of transportation, well-illustrated and explained.

Schoenherr, Allan A. A Natural History of California. California Natural History Guides: 56. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1992. A comprehensive and abundantly illustrated book which fosters an appreciation for California's natural diversity and unique beauty. Describes the climate, rocks, soil, plants, and animals in each distinctive region of the state.

Sharp, Robert P. Geology: Field Guide to Southern California. Dubuque, IA: W.C. Brown Co., 1976. Contains detailed road guides to the geologic provinces of Southern California.

Sharp, Robert P. and Allen F. Glazner. Geology Underfoot in Southern California. Missoula, MT: Mountain Press Publishing Company, 1993. The authors present twenty "vignettes"—each a story focused on some geological subject of particular interest and significance. Several involve California state park units.

Sharpe, Grant W. Interpreting the Environment. New York: John Wiley & Sons, Inc., 1976. Addresses the need to make plain how interpretation is applied on a day-to-day working basis. Over twenty nationally recognized experts contributed to this fine book.

Shaw, Charles E. and Sheldon Campbell. Snakes of the American West. New York: Knopf, 1974. This book describes the natural history, location, and identification of snakes found throughout the Western United States.

Shelton, John S. Geology Illustrated. San Francisco: W.H. Freeman, 1966. Well-illustrated with aerial photos; emphasizes Western U.S. geology, with many topics specific to California.

Short History Series: Los Angeles, Gordon de Marco, 1988; Sacramento, Dorothy Leland, 1989; San Diego, Michael McKeever; San Francisco, Tom Cole, 1986. From native cultures to modern times, these four city histories tell the story of each place, the people who defined them and their roles in California. Clear writing, photographs, and drawings provide a solid foundation for visitors or students.

Sibley, David Allen. National Audubon Society. The Sibley Guide to Birds. New York: Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., 2000. An up-to-date field guide to more than 800 North American birds.

Silbert, Linda and Al Silbert. Little Twirps Creative Thinking Workbooks. Mahopac, NY: Silbert and Bress Publications, 1977.

Simpson, Richard. Ooti: A Maidu Legacy. Millbrae, CA: Celestial Arts, 1977.

Sky Challenger: Games for Star Gazers. Berkeley, CA: Lawrence Hall of Science, University of California, 1978.

Smith, Alexander H. A Field Guide to Western Mushrooms. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 1975.

Smith, Elinor S. Po-ho-no and Other Yosemite Legends. Monterey, CA: Peninsula Print Co., 1927.

Smith, Robert Leo. Ecology and Field Biology. Fifth Ed. New York: HarperCollins College Publishers, 1996. A standard ecology textbook.

Snedigar, Robert. Our Small Native Animals: Their Habits and Care. New York: Dover Publications, 1939.

Snyderman, Marty. California Marine Life: a Guide to Common Marine Species. Niwot, CO: Roberts Rinehart Publishers, in cooperation with Monterey Bay Aquarium, 1998. An excellent survey text of marine habitats.

Stebbins, Robert C. A Field Guide to Western Reptiles and Amphibians. Second Ed. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1985. A more specific reference than Shaw (above).

Steinhart, Peter. California's Wild Heritage: Threatened and Endangered Animals in the Golden State. Sacramento, CA: California Department of Fish and Game, 1990. Catalogues threatened/endangered animals of the state and tells their ecological stories.

Stienstra, Tom. California Wildlife: A Practical Guide. Emeryville, CA: Foghorn Outdoors, Avalon Travel Publishing, Inc., 2000. A general reference on the natural history of more than a hundred types of California wildlife. Identifies excellent observation places throughout California.

Still More Science Activities: Twenty Exciting Experiments to Do. The Smithsonian Institution. New York: GMG Publishing, 1989.

Stokes, Donald W. A Guide to Observing Insect Lives. Boston: Little, Brown and Company, 1983. Diverging from the focus of most field guides, this publication investigates the life cycles and behavior of common insects.

Storer, John H. The Web of Life: a First Book of Ecology. New York: The Devin-Adair Company, 1953. A time-honored book that clearly explains basic concepts of ecology and conservation, with a number of examples chosen from California and the West.

Storer, Tracy I. and Lloyd P. Tevis, Jr. California Grizzly. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1955. Details the natural history and extermination of the single animal most closely identified with California (appearing on the state flag, park ranger patch, etc).

Story of the American West. Pleasantville, NY: The Reader's Digest Association, Inc., 1977. Excellent use of historic graphics, maps, and explanatory illustrations, from prairie schooners to mining techniques to railroad construction technology.

Sugden, Andrew. Longman Illustrated Dictionary of Botany. Harlow, England: Longman, 1992. Botanical dictionary with numerous illustrations.

Sussman, Art. Dr. Art's Guide to Planet Earth: for Earthlings ages 12 to 120. White River Junction, VT: Chelsea Green Publishing Company, 2000. This book explores how our planet works and how our actions can affect the environment.

Swan, Lester and Charles S. Papp. The Common Insects of North America. New York: Harper and Row, 1972.

Tilden, Freeman. Interpreting Our Heritage. 3rd Edition. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1977. A classic, written by the pioneer of interpretive philosophy and the recognized father of modern park interpretation. Although it was first published in 1957, this book is still relevant today, since it is not about the methodology of interpretation, but rather the guiding principles and underlying philosophy of the interpreter's art and craft.

Time-Life Ed. "Life Nature Library." A number of books in the series may prove helpful, including The Plants, 1963; The Forest, 1963; The Desert, 1962; The Mountains, 1962.

Tuttle, Merlin D. America's Neighborhood Bats. Austin: University of Texas Press, 1988. Well-written book on some of the world's least understood animals, providing helpful information about bat behavior and biology, a key to the identification of common North American species, range maps, a glossary, color photographs, and an extensive list of sources for additional information.

Van Matre, Steven. Acclimatization. Martinsville, IN: American Camping Association, 1972.

Van Matre, Steve. Earth Education: A New Beginning. Warrenville, IL: The Institute for Earth Education, 1990. This book proposes a new direction for environmental education called the "earth education path," which aims to accomplish what environmental education set out to do, but didn't: to help people improve upon their cognitive and affective relationship with the earth's natural communities and life support systems, and begin crafting lifestyles that will lessen their impact upon those places and processes on behalf of all the planet's inhabitants.

Van Matre, Steve and Bill Weiler. The Earth Speaks. Warrenville, IL: Acclimatization Experiences Institute, 1983. Collection of essays, poems, and quotations which provoke thought about the natural world.

Vieira, Linda. The Ever-living Tree: The Life and Times of a Coast Redwood. New York: Walker and Company, 1994. This book for younger readers tells the story of a 2,000-year-old redwood tree, charting its development against a backdrop of world history.

Walker, Alfred L. The Book of Owls. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Ward, Carolyn J. and Alan E. Wilkinson. Basic Interpretation Learning System: Making Connections: the Essence of Interpretation. Sacramento: Department of Parks and Recreation, 2003. An important resource for all state park interpreters.

Watts, May T. Master Flower Finder. New York: Warner Books, 1986. A layperson's guide.

Watts, May T. Reading the Landscape of America. New York: Macmillan Publishing Co., Inc., 1975. These essays about selected American habitats are well-crafted pieces of interpretation, blending personal experience with natural (and human) history.

Watts, Tom. Pacific Coast Tree Finder. Rochester, NY: Nature Study Guild Publishers, 2004. A layperson's guide.

Weitzman, David. My Backyard History Book. Boston: Little, Brown and Company, 1975. Packed with fun, inexpensive, and easy-to-accomplish projects and activities, from making time capsules and family oral histories to rubbing details. "How-to" history book for children to discover personal, family, and local history.

Weitzman, David. Underfoot: An Everyday Guide to Exploring the American Past. New York: Charles Scribners & Sons, 1976. A how-to primer on methods for discovering historical records of your family and/or community.

Werminski, John. Science, Poetry, and Parks: A Sourcebook for Interpreters of California's Natural History. Sacramento: California State Parks, 2002. An excellent bibliographic source.

West, James E. and William Hillcourt. Scout Field Book. Boy Scouts of America, 1944.

Wexs, John B. Zoo Books. A series of publications by the San Diego Zoo educational association. Each publication deals with a specific group of animals, i.e. wild dogs, snakes, cats, sharks, etc. These books are written with children in mind and are an excellent reference for animal natural history.

Whitney, Stephen. A Sierra Club Naturalist's Guide: The Sierra Nevada. San Francisco, CA: Sierra Club Books, 1979. Describes the natural history of the Sierra Nevada by communities found within the Sierra Nevada biotic zone.

Wilcox, Del. Voyagers to California. Elk, CA: Sea Rock Press, 1991. Good brief sketches of California history with short biographies on historic people.

Williams, Jack. The Weather Book: an Easy-to-Understand Guide to the USA's Weather. New York: Vintage Books, 1992. An outstanding introduction to meteorology, this book contains many colorful diagrams, maps, and other graphics.

Wilson, Edward O. The Diversity of Life. Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1991.

World Watch. Bimonthly magazine of the Worldwatch Institute, 1776. Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Worldwatch monitors evolving environmental trends such as deforestation, soil loss, species extinction, and climate change. The magazine attempts to make clear connections between the world's economic systems and environmental systems, highlights effective efforts to reverse damaging trends, and points out the problems that have yet to be addressed.

Yep, Lawrence. Rainbow People. New York: HarperTrophy, 1989. Traditional tales told among Chinese in California: of love, tricksters, fools, vice, virtue and life in Chinese America.

Zimmer, Kevin J. The Western Birdwatcher. Englewood Cliffs, NJ: Prentice-Hall, 1985. Zimmer details biotic zones and identifies birds expected to be found in those areas.
